DO Take The Initiative

Women like men who appear confident but they don't like men who are too pushy.

If you really like a girl and you want to ask her out on a date then just ask. It's as simple as that. She will either say yes or no. If she says yes then all's well and good but if she says no, you need to be sure she means it or not, whichever the case may be.

Many men tend to think that if a woman says no she really means yes. It can be very confusing and women don't really help matters by perhaps flirting and then outright rejecting any advances.

So, if she says no with a smile you can bet she is playing you along but if she says no and you're not sure because she looked at you in a serious way then ask her again but this time ask her in a different way.

Some women need to be sure that you are not being too forward or too pushy, and that your intentions are noble, so if you ask her a second time and this time add a little humor, it will put her at ease.

For example, tell her that you have been dreaming about her for weeks and can't get her out of your mind. Or, tell her that you have been working on plucking up the courage to ask her out for weeks and now you are heart broken.

If she still refuses then take the hint and move on. Life's too short.

Remember though, a woman is not likely to ask you for a date so you will almost always have to be the one to make the first move. Most often, you'll be surprised at how a woman will respond to your cheeky upfront banter and will say yes willingly and even enthusiastically.

If you don't try you'll never know.

And if she does say no, she will always remember that you were interested in her, which might come in very useful further down the line... after they have really thought about it.

TIP #2

DO Make An Effort To Look Your Best

If the girl you like has agreed to go on a date with you, you will have the opportunity to first impress her with your dress sense and more importantly your personal hygiene.

The girl you have asked on a date might be someone you work with or someone who lives nearby or just a complete stranger but you can be sure she will notice what you are wearing at the point you ask her out.

Not that it would make a difference to her decision, especially if you are in your working clothes, as this might be quite normal during the daytime. However, you wouldn't then turn up for the date wearing the same clothes... right?

That's a definite NO-NO!

Always try to "dress to impress" on the first date, which will reassure her that you have made an effort for her. This will put you in a favourable position right from the start. However, don't then let yourself down by neglecting your personal hygiene.

Nothing turns a woman off more than poor hygiene so run through this checklist just to be sure that in your excitement, you haven't forgotten anything.

- DO ensure you take a shower and wash your hair.
- DO ensure you trim your fingernails and that they are clean.
- DO ensure you brush your teeth and that they are as clean as can be.
- DO ensure your breath is fresh. Use a freshener if you have to.
- DO ensure you use a quality deodorant and perhaps aftershave.

These few reminders may be obvious to some guys but you can be sure they will make all the difference between success and failure when it comes to that vital decisive moment.

TIP #3

DO Show Good Manners

Good manners go a long way with women and will impress the hell out of them. The age of chivalry is definitely not dead and you'll be surprised at how you can change a woman's feelings about you by simply holding a door open for them.

We're not talking etiquette exactly but something very similar. Although women have strived for decades to gain recognition and parity with men, especially in the workplace, they still appreciate, being appreciated.

So if you want to up the stakes and ensure you have a good chance of getting rewarded, ensure you open doors, pull out her chair for her to sit on and help put her coat on for her at the end of the evening. And there's more...

Always say thank you if she complements you on your looks, your dress or your... manners. Be polite and gentle, show your caring side. Always ask and never assume.

Don't be afraid to say the word "please", no... not in a begging way, in an appreciative way.

Example, "Could you please pass the salt" or "Can I have your phone number please." A man who shows a woman respect will outscore every man who doesn't... every time.

If you are eating out in a restaurant, don't start eating before she does. Don't lean over the table to reach for the condiments, ask her to pass them to you. Don't pour yourself a glass of wine without first asking her if she would like a glass or another glass.

If you are meeting up in a bar, always offer to buy her a drink before you engage her in any conversation. Don't ask her to buy the next round or expect her to pay for anything.

However, if she absolutely insists on buying a drink or paying for a meal, and some woman like to show their independence, then don't fight them over it. Simply say they can pay next time.

TIP #4

DO Make The Conversation Fun

If you have worked on getting a date then make every effort to enjoy your time with the woman of your choice. That means keeping the conversation light and even entertaining.

Women love to laugh but don't go overboard by telling stupid or childish jokes or worst of all "dirty" jokes. Telling a woman dirty jokes on the first date will scare the hell out of her. You can, however, make light of people around you, as a way of keeping the conversation alive, and to have some fun.

Ask her about the funniest thing that ever happened to her and then tell her your experiences. This is a tried and proven way to develop a little bonding because you will be sharing personal experiences.

Later, perhaps much later, the talk could lead to much more explicit experiences.

Think of funny things that have happened to friends and family. Think of funny things that may have happened at work or at certain events. Humor is everywhere but it's not a universal language. By that I mean it's very subjective.

What might appear funny to you, will not be funny to someone else. Bear that in mind when telling stories that crack you up and try to keep your own level of laughter on the same level as your date's.

Do not ever ask her about ex-boyfriends or husbands in any kind of in-depth way. It's okay to ask in passing something like, "How long were you in your last relationship?" But don't ask why they broke up.

And never talk about your ex-girlfriends unless she specifically asks and if she does then keep your answers short. Don't dwell on past relationships and why they failed, you'll only end up putting a barrier between you and your new date.

Move the conversation on by telling her the past is history and you're looking forward to a happy future. She will be too.

TIP #5

DO Compliment Her About Everything

A casual date is all about getting intimate. As a guy, it's your ultimate goal but never make it obvious. Instead, make the time about her. Make her the focus of the conversation by complimenting her on her dress sense, her looks and her intelligence. Tell her she smells great and looks great. But keep one very important compliment back for later.

That is... tell her she is very sexy.

It's almost every woman's dream to be sexy. That's why they dress provocatively. They like to show off their best assets so before the date is over ensure you tell her that her body and her charm and her charisma makes her irresistibly sexy.

However, before you get to this stage look out for individual features that stand out. For example, if she has blue eyes, say "Wow what beautiful blue eyes you have" Or "What dark and mysterious brown eyes you have. I bet there are some delicious secrets hiding behind them."

Then look at other facial features such as her lips and say, "Wow what soft kissable lips you have." Or, "What a gorgeous warm smile you have."

By saying these few tender words you are making her feel "loved", which is exactly what every woman really wants. She wants to feel good about herself and she wants to feel confident. By making her feel good and by complimenting her, you are priming her for a night of passion.

Don't ever say she reminds you of someone, especially NOT an ex-girlfriend. And never put her down in any way whatsoever, even if she does have crooked teeth or a wart on her cheek. Always look for the best in her and tell her.

Finally, always compliment her on her range of knowledge whenever you get the chance. Women are fed up being seen as dumb, so every little praise will work wonders for you... later.

TIP #6

DON'T Take The First Step... If You Can Help It

Now, this depends on whether you want to see her again or not but if you take the first step towards sex then it might totally backfire. All your hard work and preparation will be lost. You'll have to be alert and aware of the signs.

So what are the signs?

If she looks you in the eyes when she talks to you she is interested. If she looks into your eyes intently, then read what they are saying. Are they "Go to bed" eyes? And I don't mean sleepy.

The way she looks at you can be a sure giveaway about how she is feeling about you. More experienced guys will be able to tell right away whether she is willing on the first date.

Be alert for other tell-tale body language signs too. For example, If she leans in towards you when she's talking to you, it usually means she is comfortable with you and she wants to get close.

Also, if she touches you on the arm or on the leg when she is talking to you, it very often means she wants to get close to you and perhaps even intimate. If she licks her lips seductively, you can take it for sure she wants to get involved.

However, be careful when interpreting the signs. Don't assume you have got it right and then make a sudden move that will shock her or frighten her. Instead, and if you suspect she is making subconscious advances towards you, you could discreetly ask her by saying, "Do you fancy me?"

If she then says something like "Oh No! Sorry I hope I wasn't giving you the wrong idea." Back off and make a joke about it.

If on the other hand she really fancies the pants off you she WILL tell you. You then have the option to ask her if she wants to go to bed. Lead her into making the decision instead of you doing it.

TIP #7

DON'T Play Silly Games Or Tell Too Many Lies

That means don't Leave her guessing whether you like her or whether you want to see her again. As the date progresses let her know how you feel about her.

However, if the end game is to just get her into bed then you could lie but afterwards, when she realizes she has been duped, she will not want to have anything to do with you ever again. She will never trust you and she will not want to be friends.

If you want to score more than once with your date then be open and honest. You might be very surprised how refreshing honesty is for a woman. The last thing she wants to hear is that you are an airline pilot and single, then finds out you work in the local supermarket, are married with 2 kids.

Sure, you have little license to expand on the truth so that she sees you in the best possible light but don't go overboard. Don't spin a web of lies which will come back and haunt you.

If you do, word will soon get around amongst her friends and their friends. Before you know it, no girl will be interested in you and you will be branded a liar and a cheat.

So, if you want to see her again simply be honest. If she likes you she won't mind too much about what you do for a living.

Many women get cheated on by their men so right of the bat, they are on their guard against men who lie. Even a small lie will have them suspicious about you.

She may shock you by asking right up front how you feel about her. For most guys this questions will conjure up pictures of wedding bells and kids, making them back off and leave the situation as quick as possible.

However, if you do like her then say so. Women don't like being rejected but they can take it better than most guys do.

TIP #8

DON'T Try To Get Her Drunk

If you try to ply her with drink she will suspect that you only want to have sex with her. Possibly against her will. BE CAREFUL!

Having a few drinks will help you both relax, lighten the mood and help to get rid of any inhibitions. But overdo it by constantly telling her to drink up or by badgering her into drinking when she doesn't want to will not work in your favor.

Likewise, don't get drunk yourself.

The last thing a girl wants is to feel responsible for her date, who is falling about all over the place because he is drunk. She will feel disturbed by your behaviour and it's unlikely she will want to see you again.

Women know only too well that some men go out with the intention of having a good time, which includes getting drunk with their mates and chasing women. This kind of laddish behaviour may be acceptable amongst the guys in your circle but it's far from okay with any girl you are taking out on a date.

In any case, do you really want to be vomiting all over your date when you could be snuggled up under the bed covers with her, having wildly delicious sex?

Get a grip! Keep your drinking to within moderation and be sure not to be forceful when ordering drinks. If she says no more for her then she really means it.

Remember too that too much drink can affect your performance in bed and it can make you feel very tired plus you will want to pee more often. All this could lead to a disastrous evening instead of what you had originally intended... or hoped for.

The worst thing about getting drunk is not being able to remember what you did or said and no amount of apologizing afterwards will help.

TIP #9

DON'T Look At Your Phone When With Her

Can you imagine trying to strike up a conversation with a beautiful girl who is constantly looking at her phone? It tells you that something on her phone is much more interesting than you are.

Well, it's exactly the same for the woman. If you just once look at your phone when you are with her it will tell her you are not interested in her or you are bored and have other, better things to do with your time.

It's a real turn off. However, if you really have to, because you have a sick mother or your business depends on it then tell her why you have to look at your phone. Make an apology and say you have to check your messages because....

And it had better be a very good reason.

Now there are times when the phone can save the day or the evening, especially if things are not going well. If you are obviously not hitting it off and there is no chemistry between you then the phone can come to the rescue.

If this is the case and you want to get out of the situation, check your phone and then say something like, "Oh no. Looks like someone has tried to break into my house... or my car... or my mother has fallen over and broken her leg"... or whatever.

You can then get up, make your excuses and get out of the situation. However, don't leave her stranded. Offer to get her a taxi home or give her a lift home if you are driving and you've not had too much to drink.

The whole phone thing can work for her just as well. So if she begins to look at her phone when she is with you on a first date, you'll know what to do.

It's always best to agree to switch your phones off on a date so that you have each other's undivided attention. You can always have a quick look when you go to the restroom.

TIP #10

DON'T Eye Up Other Women

If there's absolutely one thing women really hate, it's playing second fiddle. By that, I mean not being the centre of attention. If you ask a woman out on a date, the least you can do is pay her all the attention she is craving for... and perhaps deserves.

Looking around and eying up other women is not going to help your cause one iota. It can be very distracting when you're in a club or a restaurant and there are beautiful women everywhere you look but if you want to get laid then you have to resist the temptation... at least on this occasion.

Women are always aware of other women. They see them as competition. They look them over from head to tail and instantly decide on whether they are a threat. If there are other women close by, your date will be secretly watching you to see if you are looking at them.

If she spots you catching a glimpse, on purpose, she might well say something to you. If she doesn't she'll be thinking she's not good enough for you or that you are not really interested in her. Either way, it could spell disaster for you if you plan to get your way on the first date... or any date for that matter.

Now, it's one thing to be looking at other women and another to be looking at your date like she's some kind of freak. I mean staring at her or staring at her breasts. Sure she might have beautiful perky breasts but to keep looking will make her feel uneasy and self-conscious.

Best to just glance occasionally and smile, that way she will know you like them but are not becoming obsessed with them.

Whatever you do... DON'T look at other women's breasts while you are with your date. Your date might begin to feel inadequate and YOU will become the loser, come the end of the night.

Keep your eyes on your date or look in the opposite direction to other women if you want to stand any chance of hitting your goal! 😊
