Headline:

CPD Click Launch Welcomed By Private Practice Therapists

Summary:

The recent launch of the long anticipated CPD Click software has been greeted with a warm reception by many of the UK's leading private practice therapists. Each therapist received a personal invitation to participate in the programme from the software developers, Blue Zinc IT Ltd and the distribution co-ordinators, Private Practice Hub (PPH). Therapists who take up the free registration offer and use the software are able to instantly access information relating to a host of relevant training courses and workshops, which are held all over the UK.

Body Text:

The much anticipated CPD Click software platform, designed for private practice therapists has finally been released. Its launch coincides with the equally welcomed TM2 Click software release, which can be accessed by training providers and associations. The TM2 Click platform is at the opposite end of the spectrum and provides a gateway for training providers to inform therapists of all their available courses, workshops and further training.

The CPD Click software is available to all of the UK's 80,000 private practice professionals completely free of charge. Therapists can register by following this link: <http://www.privatepracticehub.co.uk/joincpd.php> All information about event programmes including dates, times, venues and further relevant information is made available by the training providers.

In a recent statement PPH director Geoff Simons said, "The CPD Click programme may have been some time in the making but its main advantages and benefits are instantly obvious. Instead of having to look back over email notifications or rummage through diary pages, every therapist can now conveniently logon to the software and instantly find the right further training course they need. The keyword search feature is very simple to use and of course the whole service is completely free.”

He added, “All we are trying to do is assist private practice therapists in getting easy access to event information, in order to make informed decisions about courses that best suit their Continuing Personal Development. The CPD Click software simply saves a lot of time for everyone concerned.

The software also has other useful in-built features, which the therapist will find very convenient. We have provided more information about CPD Click on our website, which can be found at: <http://www.privatepracticehub.co.uk>”

All interested private practitioners can register free by following this link: <http://www.need-to-put-link-here.com>

Geoff Simons is the founder of the Private Practice Hub and has worked, as a consultant, with a thriving psychotherapy practice for over five years.

Consequently, he understands the stresses and strains of running your own business. He also knows what is needed to build a successful private practice, what mistakes practitioners often make and how to avoid them.

All of this hands-on business experience has gone into the Private Practice Hub. It's the ultimate resource for private therapy practitioners and it's growing all the time.
